

ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The Department of Education at Valparaiso University is proud to have graduates around the world, contributing to quality teaching and learning in elementary, middle level, secondary, and higher education. The Department provides beginning teacher preparation at the undergraduate and graduate levels, special education, and a graduate program in School Psychology.

Valparaiso University's emphasis on vocation and service provides a university-wide ethos that is echoed and nurtured in our preparation of future educators who are committed to ensuring that all students learn. We prepare candidates for careers as teachers school psychologists in both public and church-related elementary, middle, and high schools.

"Valpo has a strong education department and they give you a lot of strategies that you will use as the foundation for your career".

Daniel Kuznik, VU 2001, Indiana Teacher of the Year 2008

To learn more about Valparaiso University, its location, and setting, follow this link:

About Valpo

The PDF Footer