

CURRICULUM

All the music degree programs at Valparaiso University are designed to prepare you to meet the demands of musical life. Mastery of performance, verbal, and critical thinking skills is expected in most music-related professions. Some fields, such as music education, church music and music business, require hands-on training through internship experiences. Skill in use of electronic technology is increasingly important in many fields. Ability to improvise, compose, arrange, and conduct increases the musician's chances for success. With a teaching-oriented faculty and small class size, the Department of Music helps each student meet his or her full musical potential.

Explore the Catalogue

The PDF Footer