

SPORTS MANAGEMENT CAREERS

Leadership, originality, and ingenuity are necessary qualities for a career in sports management. Our sports management program is designed for students who desire a career in the business of sport. By combining the areas of physical education, business, and communications, graduates are prepared for graduate school, law school, and the "real world."

At Valparaiso University, sports management majors must complete a liberal arts business minor, but many students choose to double major in both PE and Business. Sometimes students combine their sports management degree with a minor in a field in which they are interested, such as communications, pre-law, and psychology. Just about anything is possible!
