

PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

The faculty and staff in the Psychology Department are pleased that you are considering a major or minor in Psychology at Valparaiso University. Naturally we work very hard to provide students like you with a solid foundation in psychology that will help you with your vocational or avocational pursuits. The faculty are well regarded for their excellence in teaching, service to the community and scholarly contributions to the field of psychology. We also try to provide numerous opportunities to get involved with your fellow students through clubs, an honor society, and events throughout the year. We hope you will explore the department website. We also hope you will take the time to examine the more detailed information (via the links on the left) we believe will be helpful to you.