

THE INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP

Each spring all IECA majors participate in the International Workshop, a day-long activity in experiential learning. Often this takes the form of a simulation, in which IECA majors role-play within a fictional situation that presents an international or intercultural conflict to be resolved by the participants.

These Workshops allow students to put into practice the concepts of negotiation, policy development, and cultural awareness that they have discussed in their IECA classes. In other words, they get to DO what they have been talking and reading about.
