Honors in Scholarship

Course Honors. A Certificate of Honor in recognition of the highest scholastic achievement is awarded to one or more students who receive the highest grade in each course for which academic credit is given. Students who receive course honors have the grade designation H appear before the grade (i.e., HA for honors A or HA- for honors A-).

Semester Honors. A full-time student who achieves a semester average of 3.500 or higher in any semester (except the semester which culminates in graduation) will be awarded semester honors, provided that the student has received no grades of I or U at the official end of the semester concerned and was registered for a minimum of twelve (12.0) credit hours per semester. This rule applies to the part-time student who was registered for at least seven (7.0) credit hours of work for a given semester.

Graduation with Honors. The Valparaiso University School of Law awards its degrees with special honors to full-time students according to the following scheme:

cum laude:	top 20% of class
magna cum laude:	top 11% of class
summa cum laude:	top 3% of class

Honors for part-time students are based on grade-point equivalency with full-time honorees.
